Song lyrics serve as markers on the time-line of our lives. They help us reminisce, reflect joy and sadness, comfort us, inspire us and even give us hope. Passion! explores and reflects on a range of romance and relationship matters incorporating themes of love, loss and loneliness.

Commentary after each set of lyrics or poem provides the reader with an insight as to the inspiration for the lyrics, emotions that were difficult to verbalise at the time or a reflection and interpretation of the lyrics now.

The writing is strong in the use of literary techniques. The personification and repetition in 'Flames of the Fire in the Hearth' drives the poem, while the imagery in 'the Earth Spins', 'Suicide', 'Winter' and 'The Falconer' is vividly clear.

Emotions expressed through the writing are palpable. Tremendous sorrow and pain is expressed in 'Just a Lie', 'Sometimes I Have to Cry' and 'Going Home', while anticipation and passion is revealed in 'Love of a Simple Man'.

To balance the writing there is even a light-hearted look at flirtatious behaviour between the sexes in 'Miss D. Meaner'.

Passion! and its companion book Rage! are worthwhile acquisitions for those who enjoy lyrical poetry and thought provoking writing with good structure and use of literary devices.
